Biography

Hailing from Brisbane's southside, five-piece outfit Dallow have quickly made noise across the city with a sound best described as indie rock with the rhythm section of a funk band. This quintet of multicultural misfits with big hearts and bigger ambitions lean into individuality, friendship, and honest expression. Drawing influence from Two Door Cinema Club, Parcels, Vacations, Last Dinosaurs and Phoenix, their high energy sets across some of the city's most iconic venues have built them a loyal following and a vibrant, playful crowd that feels like part of the band's world. Dallow are proving they're well beyond their humble high school band room beginnings, with only more to come.

Reviews

“Perhaps it’s just down to the joy of creating, but [the band] have a confidence that seeps into every moment of ‘Rebel Dive’. It sounds like they’ve been doing this forever, studying their favourites to compile their own version of what makes them tick.” - Happy Mag

“Their sound can only be described in my books as a groovy, effect filled, upbeat cannon ball which sent a shock to my system... I was absolutely blown away by their passion and energy on stage.” - The Brisbane Music Spew
